

Nick Jenkins

*Entrepreneur | Veteran |
Business Leader*

A native of Colorado Springs, Nick Jenkins exemplifies versatility, leadership, and excellence across multiple industries.

Nick began his journey as a collegiate athlete, playing baseball at San Diego State University, where he honed a deep commitment to discipline, teamwork, and performance under pressure. His path soon took a bold turn as he joined the United States Navy, serving as a Special Operations team member specializing in explosive ordnance disposal — a role that demanded precision, courage, and unwavering dedication to national security.

Following his distinguished military service, Nick transitioned into the commercial diving industry. He led major projects worldwide and founded a Remotely Operated Vehicle (ROV) company, advancing subsea exploration with cutting-edge technology. After successfully exiting this venture, Nick became one of only five technical authorities for Shell Oil across North and South America, managing subsea projects valued in the hundreds of millions.

Nick's entrepreneurial spirit continued to thrive. He built and scaled multiple businesses, including a thriving mortgage brokerage and a leading digital marketing firm serving tens of thousands of clients. His expertise in business operations and strategy naturally extended into the field of mergers and acquisitions, where he forged strategic partnerships and guided companies through complex transitions.

Today, Nick holds leadership and board positions across various sectors, bringing a proven track record of operational excellence, innovative thinking, and value creation.
